IRMA UNITED CHURCH HOLD 35th ANNIVERSARY

The 35th anniversary of the Irma United Church was observed last Sunday, October 24th. The special preacher for the occasion was Rev. A. D. Richard, of Wainwright, who delivered a very fine anniversary sermon to the large audience. The following evening the ladies of the church prepared and served one of the finest chicken suppers ever served in Irma. Although the roads were quite muddy in places, the attendance was good and a very nice sum of money was raised. Immediately after supper the diners filled the main body of the church for the programme.

This consisted of several musical numbers and an illustrated lecture by Rev. A. D. Richard, entitled "Building Boys." Over quite a long period of time Mr. Richard has conducted boys' camps in various parts of Alberta, and had taken pictures at the camps of the boys and their activities, and had made slides of them so they could be shown on the screen.

These slides showed very fully the good that is being accomplished at these camps during the summer holidays. The programme was heartily enjoyed by all present.

The National Anthem, followed by the Benediction by Rev. E. Longmire, brought the evening to a close.

A.F.U. Notes

FARM ORGANIZATIONS PAY DIVIDENDS

The recent announcement of increases in prices of wheat and coarse grains is without doubt the result of farm organizations working for the interest of all farmers—members and non-members. The A.F.U. as a member of the Federation of Agriculture has in the past and is now working for 20 per cent per lb. for hogs on the rail, also for a floor under all agricultural products, which the Hon. Jas. Gardiner has promised, but has not been put into effect.

Now it is up to all farmers in the interest of their business to organize and see to it that all promises by the Government are implemented, and by so doing make the farm a worthwhile place for our sons to come back to after the war.

So by all means join the A.F.U. and help yourself to more prosperity and safe tenure on the farm. And when you have paid your debts Buy Victory Bonds! Food for Victory.

HALLOWEEN IS GOING TO BE SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

The children will be held accountable for the tickets they are given to sell, and the money raised will be turned over to the local Branch of the Red Cross Society.

Canada Should Now Be Able To Provide Opportunities For All In The Post-War Period

IN the lusty, aggressive, industrialized Canada of today it is sometimes difficult to recognize the Canada of only a few years ago with its hesitations, its questioning, its self-depreciation, and its discouragement. In these four years of war we in Canada have proved ourselves to ourselves. We have come to realize that, when the incentive is great enough, great achievement is possible to us.

Perhaps we understand it, as we didn't before, because of the tangible evidence before us. Sleepy little towns have taken on the hurry and bustle of urgent occupations. The bare fields about a multitude of cities and towns have mushroomed into immense industries, with minor cities of their own to serve them.

We who have seen these things happen sometimes stand a little certain before our own accomplishment, wondering why it took a war to make all this possible. What will happen after the war? What opportunities will be offered the returning men, men who are entitled to the best we can give? Is it enough to offer them rehabilitation grants, clothing allowances, medical treatment, and unemployment insurance? Is it enough to talk of pensions and vocational training and out-of-work benefits? These are all well enough in their way, but they are in the careful, timid spirit of the older Canada, the Canada that wasn't sure of itself or its future. They are all negative things, protections against misfortune. We don't want to think in terms of misfortune, of making jobs to keep men in busy fulfillment. We want men to work in the same spirit and for the same Canada for which they were ready to fight.

Perhaps the best principle the government can follow is to give to the men who served Canada well in war the opportunity to serve her in peace. We may not like the words capitalism and management, but unless we are ready to accept something worse, we had better turn over the job of post-war reconstruction to the men who know how; and then, if need be, see that they serve us well.

The business man is already planning for the days to come, with his eyes on the crying needs of the home market and the great new world market that is now facing Canada. Only the other day a business executive told the writer that his company had five new products ready to be placed on the market as soon as certain raw materials were made available. It was not a casual statement. Every item in the production and sale of these new commodities—costs, production problems, distribution, down to the last T crossed in the advertising copy that will introduce it—has been finally considered and passed. There is now only the waiting for the moment to begin. It is probable that in the offices of most progressive businesses there is a secret file marked "Post-war Plans." Here is the beginning of the same sort of forward looking that in these grim days has given Canada an assured position in the world.

It is a great thing to assure freedom from want, at least, to the men who have served us well. It is a still better thing to learn to work together so that Canada may be among the leaders on the way to that new world where all the freedoms are assured.—From The Liberty Magazine.

Joining In Fight

Believe There Are Many Greeks In The Armed Forces Here
It is estimated there are already hundreds of Greeks in the Canadian armed forces and from time to time more are joining in the fight for the United Nations' cause.

The latest of this brave race of people enlisted in the Canadian Women's Army Corps at Winnipeg. She is Miss Jean Denea of Winnipeg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Denea of Maple Creek, Sask.

MOST IMPORTANT

The information clerk at the North station in Boston, thought he had heard about everything until a soft female voice asked on the telephone, "Can you tell me whether the air-conditioned cars on the Kennebec Limited tomorrow morning will have blue or brown upholstery?" The woman explained: "You see, I couldn't wear my purple dress with that brown upholstery."

ORIGINATED IN EUROPE

The verse about the ladybug flying away home to save her children from burning originated in Europe. Children pleaded with the ladybugs to fly home and save their children, who could not fly when hop-vines were burned after harvest.

To Help Others

Girl Who Lost Flance Buys Dinghy With Trousseau Money

An airman will live some day because a trousseau became a dinghy in one of the countless tragedies of war.

The story begins with young Jimmy Newman sending out short-wave messages from his home, 45 1/2 street, New Toronto, before the war. He used to pick up Reginald Auckland of Hormsey, England, and Reginald would tell him about his sister, Eileen.

Well, war came along and Jimmy enlisted and became a bomber pilot and went overseas. He looked up the Auckland and fell in love with the same Eileen.

Two days after their engagement, Pte. Sgt. James Newman, 22, R.C.A.F., was reported missing after 16 operations in the Wellingtons and Strlings.

Eileen hoped and prayed. The money she was saving for a trousseau piled up and up and she didn't give up her faith as week followed week.

But finally, after months of hope, the casualty lists carried Jimmy's name in the section headed "Missing, Believed Killed."

The day Eileen and young Jimmy were to have been married Eileen walked into R.C.A.F. headquarters in London and left the money she had saved for a wedding dress. She said she wanted it to buy something that might save the life of another airman.

So Eileen had the pleasure of presenting to the R.C.A.F. a rubber dinghy of the type that has already saved scores of pilots and gunners and navigators.

It was accepted by P.O. Pat Finerty, D.F.M., of Rosemont, Sask., who flies with Jimmy's squadron.

THEIR OWN BUSINESS
An American correspondent claims to have discovered deep in Africa some Englishmen who still dress for dinner. Well, if they wish to add a stiff shirt front to a stiff upper lip, who shall criticize? They have surely earned the right to dress for dinner as they please.—Edmonton Journal.

Built For Britain

The H.M.S. Fitzroy, named for a British war hero and built for the ways at the Bethlehem-Hingham shipyard, Boston, Mass., just eight and one-half days, 204 hours after her keel was laid. It is a national record for destroyer escort building.

Rings And Trinkets

Army Guards Have Souvenirs Given Them By German Prisoners

Rings and trinkets given them by German prisoners they helped guard were brought back to Canada last week by a group of 58 western soldiers returned from overseas.

The men were welcomed by reception committee workers as they stepped off the train at Winnipeg. One man showed Alderman Hilda Heason a ring carved from a tooth brush handle. He said the prisoner had made it to while away the time.

Other men had rings, made from planes. One Canadian youth displayed a silver belt buckle given him by a Luftwaffe prisoner.

Private W. A. Toole, Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, Winnipeg, said he spoke to a 17-year-old German prisoner on the way home. He asked the German what he thought of Hitler. Said the youth: "I don't think. But Mussolini, he has no brain."

New Drug Discovered

Professor Engaged In Research To Discover Value Of Clavacin

Prof. H. W. Anderson of the University of Illinois Department of Horticulture, discloses that he is engaged in research to determine the value of clavacin, another drug obtained from mold and said it "may prove to be more useful than penicillin for certain types of diseases."

He asserted that it kills all bacteria killed by penicillin and some that are unaffected by the latter drug, which has proved to be a medical sensation.

The university board of trustees also revealed that it has approved a $75,000, three-year research project aimed at finding a method for synthetic production of penicillin.

The rare drug now is obtained from mold in small amounts by a tedious process. A grant of $75,000 will be furnished by the Upjohn Company of Kalamazoo, Mich., and chemists will try to take the drug apart and see if it can be manufactured synthetically with more speed.

Prof. Anderson said clavacin has proved successful in control of plant diseases, but that its toxic properties when injected into animals have not been determined.

"It is possible that clavacin, like penicillin, can be used against bacterial infection in humans when more is learned about its properties," he said.

Choice Is Varied

Seamen Like All Magazines But Especially Those With Pictures

The choice of merchant seamen in the matter of reading matter is very diverse, according to a survey made dain seamen at the League of the Allied tained from British as well as Canadian seamen at the League of the Allied Seamen's Club at St. John, N.B.

A wireless operator from Edinburgh, Scotland, told of the reading preferences on his ship. After the seamen had used up all the quizzes in the magazines, they made up their own quizzes from facts found in the magazines of the Navy League sent aboard and spent many an interesting evening at anchor in port by trying out their homemade contests on one another. He said it was not only the Canadian and American magazines that are appreciated but Canadian and American books also.

Offhand he suggested that picture magazines were the best possible gift, for pictures are a universal language and a boon to mixed crews. Many seamen, oddly enough, like women's magazines, chiefly because they can take them home later to their wives.

At Lord Woolton's suggestion, Britain's restaurants are planning to serve meatless "V" menus, also called "ship-saving meals".

Winston Churchill's Advocacy Of An Anglo-American Alliance May Prove An Historic Event

THE cause of English-speaking union is not a new one; has long been enshrined in many hearts. It may be doubted whether it ever has had a mightier advocate or nobler advocacy than the world heard when Winston Churchill spoke at Harvard. More, and more hopefully, it may be doubted whether at any time within living memory, or perhaps indeed within a century, the dream has been nearer to coming true.

THE "SECRET SPECIALS" OF THE QUEBEC CONFERENCE

(Passed by Censor)

When word was first flashed throughout the world that Right Honourable Winston Churchill, Prime Minister of Great Britain, was in Quebec there was much speculation throughout the country as to how he had reached Canada's Ancient Capital. One citizen declared he had it "on the best of authority" that Mr. Churchill had landed at Wolfe's Cove from a submarine; another had "definite information" that he had descended on the Plains of Abraham in a helicopter. It was a great guessing game. But railwaymen were not guessing. They knew, but they did not tell. They also knew just when and how President Roosevelt and Premier Mackenzie King would reach Quebec. But the words "Secret and Confidential" at the head of the transportation advice men just that to them. The fact that there was no leak and that the many special trains required to move the three great leaders of the Allied nations, their numerous advisers and officials and members of their staffs, were operated without a hitch is a tribute to Canadian railwaymen. One of the first Canadians to greet Mr. Churchill when he put foot on Canadian soil was R. C. Vaughan, Chairman and President of the Canadian National Railway, which System operated 12 of these "Secret Specials," including the train which carried the British Prime Minister and the members of his immediate party to Quebec for the opening of the Conference, and the Presidential Special, which carried Mr. Roosevelt and his staff from Quebec to Ottawa, and from the Canadian Capital on his home journey. Other special trains operated by the National System in connection with the Conference carried members of the cabinets of both Great Britain and the United States, high government officials, military and naval experts and advisers and members of their staffs. These C.N.R. specials covered a total distance of 3,245 miles.

Photographs show: 1—President Roosevelt's special arriving at Ottawa. It was hailed by the one of the National System's famous 6400's, the type of engine used on the train which carried their Majesties, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, over C.N.R. lines during their visit to Canada in 1939. 2—Mr. Churchill graciously according to a request for his autograph during a brief operational stop at a C.N.R. point en route. 3—British transport chiefs photographed in a C.N.R. business car. Lord Leathers, Minister of War Transport (at left), and Sir Ralph Metcalfe, Director of Sea Transport. 4—Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Mackenzie King on the platform at Charey. 5—Members of the Churchill party inspecting the big locomotive of the special train. The group includes Brigadiers Porter, Kirkman and Jacobs. Major Buckley, Miss Bright of the secretarial staff, N. S. Wallon, Executive Vice-President of the C.N.R., and J. F. Fringie, General Manager of the Atlantic Region.

Has Advantages

Forestry Authorities Think Helicopter Might Be Good Protection

The helicopter may serve as a peace-time instrument of protection over Canada's forests.

Brain-child of Igor Sikorsky, Russian plane inventor, designer and builder, the craft is able to soar straight off the ground without forward run and in flight it darts forward and sideways, even flies backward. It can "sit" motionless in the air, making vertical landings in areas no larger than the average back yard.

Opinion gathered in a Canadian Press survey of provincial forestry authorities indicate these officials are watching development of the craft and, depending on experimental trials, may incorporate it on forest protection service.

Ontario authorities plan to obtain one of the machines when available and put it to the test.

Its apparent advantages in forest work over the conventional type of plane now used are that it can hover at tree-top height or in the smallest clearing and deposit fire-fighters safely on the ground; or hang suspended above the forest crown while fire-fighters "step down" to the branches of convenient trees and scramble to earth.

Its ability to move in all directions in a comparatively short space appears to be the answer to the needs of survey work. It could enable minute photography work to be carried on, "shooting" disease-spreading rot that high-speed planes might miss.

A WORD OF CAUTION TO MEN OF MILITARY AGE AND TO THEIR EMPLOYERS

National Selective Service Civilian Regulations authorize the Minister of Labour to require that male employees furnish their employers with evidence that they have not failed to comply with National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations (i.e., the Military Call-Up).

It is intended that an order will be issued shortly, requiring employers to carry out the necessary check on their male employees, and to report any men who do not produce the required evidence of compliance.

The check up will cover every male employee who has reached the age of 18 years and six months and has not reached his 38th birthday. The man will have to show evidence in one of the following forms:—

- (a) A man discharged from the Armed Forces following service during the present war should have his discharge certificate. A discharged man who has not a certificate should apply for one in the following manner:—
Army—District Officer Commanding, Military District in which discharge took place.
Air—Records Officer, R.C.A.F. Headquarters, No. 5 Temporary Building, Ottawa, Ont.
Navy—Secretary of Naval Board, Ottawa, Ont.
- (b) A man who has responded to a direction from a Registrar of a Divisional Mobilization Board, to report for medical examination under Mobilization Regulations, should have either a certificate of unfitness or an order for postponement of military training from the Divisional Registrar. (A man entitled to either document who has lost his copies should immediately apply to the Divisional Registrar who issued the original, for a duplicate.)
- (c) A man who has been rejected on application for voluntary enlistment in the Army since the beginning of the war, should have a certificate showing that he was rejected through medical unfitness. (If a man entitled to such a certificate does not possess it, he should apply to the District Military Headquarters of the District in which he applied for enlistment, in order to procure the necessary form.)
- (d) A man in the designated classes who has not reached his 38th birthday, who was married as at July 15th, 1940, or who, having been married before that date, is a widower with children, must be prepared to furnish evidence, such as a marriage certificate or birth certificate of a child, to show that he was married before July 15th, 1940, and that he is now either married or is a widower with children.
- (e) A man who has reported for enrolment in the Army under an Order—Military Training issued under the Mobilization Regulations and who has been rejected should have a certificate showing he was rejected through medical unfitness. If a man entitled to such certificate does not possess it, he should apply to the District Officer Commanding the Military District in which he was rejected.
- (f) (i) A man who is not subject to the Mobilization Regulations because he is an enemy alien who has not made application for naturalization may obtain a certificate from a registrar of his Divisional Mobilization Board indicating that the Mobilization Regulations do not apply to him and such certificates must be obtained by all such enemy aliens.
(ii) A man who is an alien and neither a national of Belgium, Czechoslovakia, The Netherlands, Norway, Poland, the United States nor Yugoslavia and has not applied for naturalization may be relieved of his duty under Mobilization Regulations, but he gives up his right to future Canadian citizenship after the war; where such men have applied for such relief and been granted such status, certificates will be issued by registrars in appropriate cases.

This caution is issued to facilitate compliance with the order which is proposed. A reasonable interval will be allowed to permit men to provide themselves with whatever document, as referred to above, they may be entitled to hold.

Employers are requested to give notice of this proposal to their male employees, to facilitate the operation of the order when issued.

The opening round comes in the form of an eye-catching poster which is being placed on every bulletin board in shops and round-houses and prominently displayed in all offices and stations. The color quickly attracts and it requires only an instant to read the brief message which is an appeal signed by R. C. Vaughan, chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways, and reads: "I am confident that the men and women of the Canadian National system will break all their previous records in buying the Bonds of Canada's Fifth Victory Loan, and so hasten victory."

This initial appeal is being posted in all company establishments in such manner as to ensure that it will be read by each one of the 94,000 employees working on the lines in Canada and in the subsidiary companies.

Treasure those meat drippings. If scorched, they won't keep well. Use them to flavor beet greens, spinach, hot slaw, wilted lettuce, green beans, hot potato salad, but be sure to have both fat and vegetable hot when combined.

AVOIDABLE LOSSES

Grain Inspection Branch figures for the period August 1 to October 15, reveal a serious situation which involves heavy losses to the farmers concerned. We refer to increases in 'smutty' and 'rejected' wheat.

Smutty Wheat
With rare exceptions, which need not concern us here, all smutty wheat results from stinking smut (bunt). In Hard Red Spring wheat and Durum, this disease can be completely controlled by seed treatment. On October 14, the Wheat Board Price List provided for a discount of 10¢ per bushel for smut in grades No. 1 Hard to No. 4 Northern. Since August 1, 101 cars have graded smutty; a frequency five times as great as last year. The loss to the farmer is nearly $200.00 per car.

Rejected Wheat
'Rejected' gradings have increased at an alarming rate this season, though most of the wheat so graded was probably grown in 1942, when harvest conditions were unfavorable. Aside from ragweed, most rejections are due to excess moisture resulting in heating and sprouting. The discount for grades No. 1 Hard to No. 4 Northern is 11¢ per bushel—a serious loss. Since August 1, 329 cars have graded rejected; they are three times as common as last year. This loss cannot be eliminated, but it can be greatly reduced.

FARMERS AND FARM WORKERS

If Your Farm Work has Slacked for the Winter, You Are Needed
Elsewhere in Essential Employment

Highly essential work—very important in Canada's war effort and for the welfare of the Nation—is threatened with shortages of workers. One of the few sources of men available for other high priority jobs is those men on the farm who will not be needed at home during the Fall and Winter. Heavy needs must be met in many lines—producing vitally essential forest products; in base metal and coal mining, in food processing, in railway track maintenance. If you live on a farm and are not needed at home during the Fall and Winter, you are urged to answer this national appeal.

Farmers engaged in essential work during the off season will be allowed to return home when needed. Also, those on postponement under Mobilization Regulations will continue on postponement while in approved essential work during the slack season on the farm.

Please answer this vital call NOW.

For Western Farmers Selling
Feed Grains to Eastern Farmers

WHEAT • OATS • BARLEY

1. Wheat, up to 14 bu. per authorized acre and one car of oats and/or barley over the quota may be shipped.
2. Every seller must apply to the Canadian Wheat Board, Winnipeg, for a permit to ship each carload before loading for shipment.
3. Cars shipped will be inspected at Winnipeg for grade and dockage. On the basis of sample inspection, certificates will be issued by the Board of Grain Commissioners, for cars held "too full" for regular inspection. The Inspection Certificate establishes the grade and dockage.
4. Dockage up to 3% is allowed. Dockage above 1% cannot be charged for, and payment will not be made for the difference in weight between 1% and the actual dockage.
5. Elevator scale tickets or railway weights must accompany the bill of lading. Freight charges are to be paid by the farmer in Eastern Canada.

PRICE INFORMATION

On oats and barley the price per bushel to be charged the eastern farmer is the ceiling price (or the cash price if it is lower), basis in store at Fort William or Port Arthur.

GOVERNMENT SUBSIDIES AVAILABLE

As announced by the Dominion Government, the subsidy of 10c per bushel on oats and 15c per bushel on barley applies on oats and barley sold by any western farmer to a farmer or feed dealer east of Fort William-Port Arthur. Special application must be made to the Canadian Wheat Board, Winnipeg, in order to secure payment. Special forms for this purpose will be provided by the Canadian Wheat Board on request. These subsidies will also be paid on community sales between farmer and farmer in western Canada, provided the farmer delivers the grain over an elevator scale and meets other requirements of the Wheat Board.

Navy Marine Engines Made and Carried by C.P.R.

Helping to meet the urgent need of the Royal Canadian Navy for main marine engines and condensers to be used in escort vessels the Canadian Pacific Railway's Angus Shops in Montreal now has a steadily increasing flow of these "tools of war" coming from that section of the big shops which earlier completed the manufacture on schedule of more than 1,400 Valentine tanks, mainly for service in Russia.

The marine engine, pictured above on a C.P.R. depressed-centre flat car, prior to being prepared for shipment, weighs 89 tons, with condensers and bedplates included. Its size is demonstrated in the picture on the right of the workman, who is dwarfed by one of the huge connecting rods. Handling of the engines to their destination comes under the head of "high and wide" transportation, with special advice from the Canadian Pacific's engineering department being followed to squeeze the loads past bridges and other permanent installations.

As was the case with the Valentine tanks the marine engines are being made at the same time as Angus Shops handles the greatly increased repairs on locomotives and cars necessitated by wartime's heavier transportation load. All the jobs are being done without new buildings or extensive additions to the existing plant, a further demonstration of the versatility of the department headed by H. B. Bowen, chief of motive power and rolling stock.

To reach marine engine production as early as possible machining of parts and fabrication of sub-assemblies was started while the tank work still was proceeding at the big Canadian Pacific shops. As machine capacity and floor area were released from the tank contract they were utilized for the marine engine work. The first 10-ton engine bedplate was laid down a little over two weeks after completion of the last tank hull on the Valentine contract to earn the compliment in an official report that "the very best efforts were put forth by all persons responsible for this work."

Viking Items

A number of friends and neighbors gathered at the D. G. Harris home east of town last Friday evening on a surprise visit. The evening was spent socially, and after a delicious lunch was served, Mr. and Mrs. Harris and son, Lloyd, were the recipients of gifts as mementoes of the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Harris feel very grateful for this neighborly visit before they leave for their new home in California.

Mrs. C. R. Wragg received the sad news on October 18th that her father, Mr. Wm. J. Hubbs, of Belleville, Ontario, had died suddenly. She left that evening to be in attendance at the funeral services which were held last Thursday. Mrs. Wragg has the sympathy of the community in her great loss.

J. A. Horton returned last Friday from a three weeks' trip to Rochester, Minnesota, and points in Texas, where he had a pleasant visit with relatives and friends. He feels quite improved in health since his visit to the Rochester clinic.

Successful auction sales were held at the Fred Dundas farm last Friday, and on Monday at the D. G. Harris farm. We understand that Mr. Dundas will move to the coast and that this district will also lose the Harris family.

Word has been received that a daughter was born to Rev. and Mrs. H. G. Lester on October 8th, at Seagrave, Ontario. Mother and daughter doing well. Rev. Lester was formerly pastor of the United Church here.

About 75 per cent. of the threshing was completed in this district before the recent wet spell. It is hoped that the weather will clear up so that all farmers will get threshed.

The high school pupils are planning to hold a "Scavenger Hunt" on Friday, October 29th, as their first party of the new term. They will go out in parties of four to complete their scavenger lists, such as signatures and various articles from around town and the pupils hope that the citizens they call on will take it along in good part to join in the spirit of the occasion.

Part of their visit will be to sell the "Milk for Britain" tickets, notice of which is being given another column of this paper.

Give the pupils a royal welcome and send them happy on their way.

James Dayton, RCAF, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dayton, of Abbotsford, B.C., formerly of this place, has been reported missing over enemy territory. The young man visited relatives here about two years ago.

The Viking Women's Institute were pleased to receive so many letters from local boys overseas who had cigarettes sent them through Mr. Murdoch and had arrived safely.

Besides being busy selling tickets on the beautiful doll and the warm wooly pair of blankets to be raffled off for the "Save the Children Fund" on the last night of the carnival, the local Elks are busy planning for some big doings for the two nights of fun and frolic that will transcend anything they have ever staged before, and that's saying something.

The Elks' Hall will be decorated in keeping with the occasion and the booths with the concessions will be placed for easy access. It is the intention, at the present, at least, to have a jitney dance as usual if music can be secured.

Whatever you have in mind for these days, put everything off and tell your friends and neighbors that you will be at the Elks' carnival on November 18th and 19th, and help the Elks swell the "Save the Children Fund," and have a good time doing it. It's a date.

An important meeting of the Viking Branch of the Canadian Legion will be held in the drug store warehouse on Thursday evening, November 4th, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of completing arrangements for the November 11 Memorial Service and social evening afterwards.

All committees should have reports ready.

The Legion is also sponsoring the annual Poppy Sale for disabled veterans of World War I.

A public dance will follow the service on November 11th.

Cpl. and Mrs. Geo. Abernethy, of Tofteld, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Rolans.

Hallowe'en, October 31st, falls on Sunday next. It is expected that the youngsters will observe Saturday night instead.

During the past few years, in town at least, the young folks have behaved very well and very little damage to property has been the result. This is as it should be.

There is enough destruction going on in the world without unnecessary and foolish damage at home. The public can assist in a safe and sane Hallowe'en by supporting the "Milk for Britain" ticket fund that the Kinsmen are sponsoring instead. The school teachers have taken this scheme over for the Kinsmen Club and is worthy of everyone's support.

Shelled hard cooked eggs sometimes darken if they stand for any length of time. They should be stored in their shells in the refrigerator until you are ready to use them.

ERA OF PROGRESS FOR AVIATION

Only A Visionary Can Comprehend Future of Commercial Aviation in Canada Says Boeing Expert

LEO CASTLE

Commercial aviation in Canada and the United States will see an era of progress and development following the war beyond the comprehension of any but an air-minded visionary. This is the opinion of Leo Castle, who as general superintendent of Canso patrol bomber production for Boeing Aircraft of Canada, Ltd., spurred output of the company's big Vancouver plant.

"When this war is over," said Castle, who recently returned to Seattle, "aircraft are going to be bigger, better and there will be more of them than ever before. The public will be more air-minded and I expect a 100 per cent. increase in air travel."

"On top of that, all the advantages of military innovations will be available for safer, more modern air transport. Air freight is bound to come and this will contribute greatly to the development of formerly remote, rich areas in northern Canada and Alaska."

"It would not be surprising to see as great a volume of freight transported by air as is now handled by rail and steamship," he declared.

Between his first visit to Vancouver for a week almost a year ago and subsequent assignment to Boeing Aircraft of Canada last December, Castle had a chance to study the giant strides made in aviation here.

He paid high tribute to the workmen and workwomen employed and to the co-operation and eagerness with which supervisors have reacted to suggestions in the interest of increasing production problems.

"Our job, both in Seattle and Vancouver, is to establish the aviation industry here on a basis of maximum production for complete prosecution of the war now, and permanence for future development when the present emergency is over."

Castle, regarded as one of the outstanding aircraft engineers and executives on this continent, conducted valuable preliminary work on the famed 74-passenger Pan American Clipper, one of which made an epic flight practically around the world after Pearl Harbor in order to avoid capture.

Would Isolate Prussia

Emil Ludwig Thinks Germany Should Be Made Two States

Washington, D.C.—Emil Ludwig, famous German author and biographer, recently had a unique session with the Army's School for Military Government at Charlottesville, Va., as to what the Allies should do with Germany after the war.

Ludwig gave a series of lectures on how to prevent another Hitler from arising and plunging the world into another war 20 years hence.

Based upon years of studying Bismarck, Hindenburg and the Kaiser, the German historian urged that there be a strong army of occupation by all the United Nations for at least five years.

"The German people should know for the first time in 130 years," he said, "what a foreign authority looks like. Only thus can they be brought to understand that they have been defeated."

Ludwig pointed out that German militarism always had come from Prussia, while Germany's culture had come from the South and West. Therefore, he proposed splitting Germany up into two states: (1) Prussia, small and isolated; and (2) Bavaria, Saxony and the smaller Catholic German states which are not militaristic and which would be joined with Austria. This would put the Catholics in one country and the Lutherans Prussians in another.

"Leave to the Germans all that other nations have," Ludwig recommended, "but take away their weapons, supervise their education, and give them political guardianship. If you do not, and if you speak of the 'poor misguided German people,' then 20 years from now your sons will be fighting another war against them."

"What I fear," continued Ludwig, "is that on the day after the death of Hitler, the Junkers, the generals will know to you and say: 'We love Americans.' Come, let us be brothers again. I fear that some of you will say, 'Now let us make the peace. They are good people, these Germans.'"

"But they are not. They are not one whit better than the Hitler. They merely have better manners," Ludwig declared. — Washington Merry-Go-Round.

HOME SERVICE

IT'S IMPORTANT NOT TO NEGLECT WRITING LETTERS

Write Letters!

On goes the stamp on your letter and away it goes, by train, by plane, by boat, perhaps on its way to cheer some lad in the armed forces. There really is no excuse in this modern world for not writing because with all the facilities at hand your mail is actually speeded in delivery.

Write to your friends! Don't get out of contact and be forgotten. Nothing is so refreshing as to receive new letters from people and particularly now, with a war on, the men in the army, navy and air force must receive mail from their family and friends. It is the least you can do when they are fighting for you.

When you do write to a soldier make your letters cheery and interesting—don't bring in the troubles of the day because they enlarge and worry him by the time he gets the letter. Keep your petty troubles to yourself—they're not for letters. Your 32-page booklet is full of all types of letters to help you with your writing. If you're wondering how to write a charming "thank you" note after a week-end visit, read the booklet. Business letters are also included, with more formality, of course.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Good Letter Writing Made Easy" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Shooting Is Thrilling Sport For Crack C.W.A.C. Rifewomen

Shooting is a hobby which many members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, both officers and other ranks, enjoy in their leisure time and though their duties do not call for the use of firearms there are many crack shots in the Corps. Here are shown two C.W.A.C. experts with rifle and revolver. C.S.M. Elizabeth Butterill (top) of Preston, Ont., now overseas, is pictured as she draws a bead on the target during practice on a rifle range. Capt. Jean Rayment, now C.W.A.C. staff officer for the Ottawa Area Command is the markswoman shown left and right below. Daughter of Brigadier-General and Mrs. J. D. Dunbar of Victoria, B.C., she is one of Canada's best women rifle shots and a life member of the B.C. Rifle Association. She competed at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meet at Connaught Ranges, Ottawa, in 1938.

Gift Is Treasured

London Woman Sent General Montgomery A Cardinal's Cross

General Montgomery carries a "Cardinal's Cross"—the bakelite emblem designed for the late Cardinal Hinsley and distributed in large quantities to the troops everywhere. The cross was sent to General Montgomery, who is not a Catholic, by a London woman who was bombed out of her home and injured in a raid on London. In acknowledging the gift General Montgomery says, in an airgraph letter, that the cross arrived safely, adding: "It will keep it by me. Good luck to you."

Some Scrap Heap

Ship Brought Tons From North Africa To Brooklyn

The New York Times says: The head of a scrap drive might have seen at a Brooklyn pier recently what looked like the millenium. A shipload of scrap from the North African battle area had arrived to be rebuilt, reprocessed and returned to the war. The 550 tons of scrap included wrecked airplane motors, plane parts, empty ammunition containers, scrap rubber, dead batteries and even 100,000 pairs of worn-out shoes.

Answer Came Quickly

When Churchill Prayed For Help To Escape From Boers

In Winston Churchill's story of his escape from the Boers in 1899 he throws a revealing light on the guidance he has given Britain during her darkest hours. In "My Escape from the Boers," he writes:

"I realized with awful force that no exercise of my own feeble wit and strength could save me from my enemies, and that without the assistance of that High Power . . . I could never succeed. I prayed long and earnestly for help and guidance. My prayer, as it seems to me, was swiftly and wonderfully answered."—Christian Science Monitor.

Men Off To War, Girls Become Punchers

These punchers are in a telephone office and not on the western plains, as the name might suggest. Girls are now being trained to become operators of automatic transmitters, but as the purpose of the machine is to perforate, or to "punch" symbols through a paper tape, the term "puncher" is now generally applied to all who work on these key-boards. Owing to the very large number of enlistments of men operators, the Canadian National Telegraphs are calling on women to replace men now in the armed forces. To train these operators, schools have been established throughout Canada.

The course continues for 13 weeks after which those who have become proficient in the use of the perforator machine are transferred to one of the operating rooms of the Canadian National Telegraphs where they begin to handle "live" traffic under the supervision of a senior operator.

These girls are efficient touch typists, the keyboard they operate being similar to that of the office typewriter. The real test for the "puncher" is to maintain a typing speed of 50 words a minute during a ten-minute period. The "puncher" is more than symbolic because, the perforating machines require a heavier touch than is necessary for a typewriter.

The upper photograph shows: A C.N.T. instructor, who knows all the "do and don'ts" of telegraph language, at the blackboard, just like school, stressing the elements of a telegraph message. Below, a pupil "puncher" practicing at the keyboard of a perforator machine. These exercises, like the scales for piano pupils, are designed to train the fingers to find the "notes" by touch. The first line reads: "TV WVUTS ROAUKEJ IH GFEDBCA," which is not code but one of a number of lessons designed to impress upon the student the position of the letters on the keyboard.

A LASTING PEACE

Can Only Be Attained By The Utter Defeat Of The Enemy

Again the reports, so often asserted and so often denied, that the army generals have taken over Germany and left to Hitler only an empty semblance of power. Whether or not it is true today, one day it will be true. It may be that the generals will not depose Nazism outright lest, having no other faith, Germany might break as Italy is breaking with the loss of its tawdry Caesar and its empty political creed.

One day, not so far distant, the generals will return to the campaign that a defeated Germany fought once before and fought successfully. It will not be a campaign to win the war. That time has passed. It will be a campaign to make the war so long and harrowing that we may grow weary and stop short of the "unconditional surrender" we have demanded. So Germany would again win the peace and retain the will and the power to make war anew.

Our warfare is no longer a warfare of survival as it was in days past. That fight ends when, for the moment, survival is assured, as it is assured to us now. But survival is the least part of the cause to which we have dedicated ourselves. For a man may survive and lose his soul. We have to keep alive our belief in those things that tens of thousands in this war have thought it worth while to give their lives to save. A belief in a real democracy, an assurance of the freedoms we have enjoyed and have pledged ourselves to secure for all peoples, an open assertion of the decency we have maintained in our intercourse among men and nations, of the inviolability of our world, of faith kept, and a wide, if not always perfect, humanity. We have been challenged in all these beliefs and we have faced the war in their defense. Now it is apparent that these beliefs of ours will be used to soften our resolve that we will leave a new generation to fight these battles again.

We are easy victims in such a campaign because we are so pathetically fearful of being vindictive against an enemy who has shown no mercy anywhere. Only a quarter century ago the grass was scarcely green on the graves in France and Flanders before we were being asked to be ashamed of our part in that war. We were told, and too easily believed, that the terms of Versailles were the outcome of a cruel vindictiveness. So we listened, and mitigated the terms, and stood idly by while Germany made a mockery of Locarno. We shut our eyes to craft and treachery and the obvious menace of Hitler, until war again caught us unprepared.

We do not want vindictiveness, but we do want justice. Justice is all that Germany can ask, and not a weak-kneed justice that argues that the real Germany is not the Germany of Hitler. Let us remember that the Germany of Hitler was made possible by the Germany of the generals, by the Germany of the whole German people who fought and worked and contributed, who condoned the blasting of Rotterdam, the rape of Lidice, the destruction of Coventry, the desolation of the ghettos of Warsaw, and the long record of bitterness and tragedy and bestiality that Germany let loose upon a world.

When justice has been meted out, for the millions of dead and the tens of millions of homes made desolate by Germany's mad bid for world mastery, when we have made the lesson so clear that there may be no will among any class in Germany to try it again, then we will talk of Germany's place in the family of nations. Until then, let us beware the generals, for they, more than Hitler and his bestial crew, are the evil genius of Germany. — From Liberty Magazine.

The oldie did retire from the sea. Each morning a youngster knocked at his door, went in, and came out again. After this had gone on for some weeks, the curiosity of the villagers was aroused.

"Tell me," said one to the youngster, "why do you visit that old sailor every morning?"

"Well, sir, he gives me sixpence if I say to him: 'The captain wants you immediately.'"

"And what does he say to that?"

"He says, 'Tell the captain to go to the devil.'"

CHAPTER VII

THE metamorphosis from grimy chimney sweep into a clean skinned valet was soon made, but the change from Puritan to London beau was less speedy. While it required but a day to acquire the latest styles hats, cloaks and hose and the black wig needed by Jonathan, and the dye with which his mustache was to be darkened as it appeared, the learning of the intricacies of dice and cards under the tutelage of Matt Tucker delayed for three days the appearance at London's most expensive hostelry of the dazlingly garbed man whom that individual's attendant, engaging rooms for his master, described to the landlord as Master John Hale. Said the landlord, "Master John Hale."

The inn was orderly. Unlike the Golden Hind, there was no gambling in the public room. Jonathan ordered and drank with his meal a bottle of the establishment's most expensive of his money supply caused him no qualms when he picked up the cards dealt him and made the first bet. He knew he would win, even as he had been successful when rolling dice for Denys.

The knowledge left him confident when the more experienced gamblers, particularly one beefy-faced man in the uniform of a captain of dragoons, sought to test him by increasing the size of the wager. Jonathan, when the cards were laid down reached out coolly and had the heap of coins raked and stacked before him even before a comparison of his hands disclosed that he had indeed won the first round.

IT WAS that complete sangfroid that caused Jonathan to win again; the losers, nettled, showed money recklessly across the table in an effort to shatter his self-possession, betting more than the strength of their hands called for. Jonathan's win, then spoke to Tucker who again sought the landlord.

Jonathan's weapon was in, dipping like a faug . . .

air of detachment was increased by the fact that, even while going through the mechanics of the game, he was scanning every face in the room to see if the tall man, his lordship, were among those present.

By the time Jonathan had assured himself that the meeting toward which he was working would not be achieved this night, the pile of sovereigns before him was already larger than the sum Denys had carried away from the Golden Hind, and the reputation of Master John Hale was made. Tomorrow, all London would know him as a polished, suave individual, able to hold his own with the best.

IT WAS down when the game ended. Jonathan was in possession of a small fortune. Capt. Shattuck, the heaviest loser, remained seated at the table as the others rose, watching Jonathan pocketing the gold and notes of hand. "If you ever play against me again, Hale," he sneered, "it might be well to remember that there are certain rules no gentleman overlooks."

Jonathan straightened. "You would not be accusing me of cheating?" The dragon pushed back his chair. "No man can win like that without resorting to trickery of some sort."

"You have drank over-much this night, Shattuck," said Jonathan. "I give you a chance to blame your words on the wine."

"The words are mine!" snarled Shattuck. "Damn me . . ."

Jonathan caught up a half-filled glass from the table and flung the contents into the beefy face. "That, captain, for a poor loser," said he, immediately rushing toward the door.

The other players were between them then, but the insult on both sides had been given. "Damn!" roared Shattuck. "You shall have my card for that, Hale!"

"At your service, captain," bowed Jonathan. "But formalities will delay the blood-letting you need. You have your sword as I have mine. There is light enough to see in the courtyard behind this inn, and if you can find a second, Sir Maurice, I am sure, will act in like capacity for me."

"I shall be happy to oblige, Master Hale," said Sir Maurice. All night he had followed with pleasure the good luck of the man he had introduced, and was eager to be considered the boon companion of this elegant and nonchalant stranger.

THE principals, seconds, and witnesses of this affair of honor, trooped downstairs and into the rear yard of the tavern.

Shattuck drew his sword and faced the waiting Jonathan. Jonathan lifted his weapon and the points touched in salute. The dragon had the body of a trained fighting man. Trained, too, was the arm that sent the bright steel weaving before Jonathan.

Unlike Shattuck, Jonathan had never been schooled in the art of fencing. But he was born with an instinctive co-ordination of muscle which stood him in good stead now. Captain Shattuck's moves were conscious, the result of what he had been taught in long hours of drilling. Jonathan's actions were natural, quick and effortless as those of an animal.

Shattuck executed what Jonathan did not know was a thrust in tierce, but his blade moved, nonetheless, into the correct parry, straightening the sword of the dragon and then, before Shattuck could recover, Jonathan's weapon was in, dipping like a faug into the soldier's uniform, twisting and the sword was jerked out of Shattuck's hand.

Jonathan sheathed his sword and bowed. "I have plinked you, captain, and disarmed you. Honor has been satisfied. Or is it your desire to continue?"

The soldier's face sobered and paled by the speed with which the encounter had been terminated, shook his head. "I apologise, Master Hale," he grinned ruefully. "As you said, the wine must have affected my spleen."

JONATHAN picked up the other's sword and returned it. "Now gentlemen," he smiled. "This bit of exercise has whetted my appetite, if not my steel. Will you join me in the breakfast that should be ready in yonder inn?"

Sir Maurice fell into step with Jonathan and party, all unconscious of the sword which had been forgotten, turned toward the tavern.

"You are staying long in London, Master Hale?"

"I had hoped to spend some time in the city," he answered Blaine. "In fact, I shall make London my home if I can find a more suitable residence than a public inn."

"I own a number of houses on Pall Mall," Sir Maurice rose to the occasion. "I shall be pleased to lease or sell one of them to you. That would be a most pleasant arrangement, Master Hale. It would make us neighbors."

"Excellent!" Jonathan approved with just the right inflection of carelessness. "Give me the address and I shall send my man Tucker around to look at the place."

British Sacrifices

People Have Given Up Every Luxury To Win War

The luxury trades have been eliminated in the United Kingdom by the determination of the government to devote all effort to winning the war. Luxuries no longer are manufactured there, and taxation discourages purchase of goods of that kind made in earlier years. A 100 per cent purchase tax on the wholesale price is levied on silk dresses, leather trunks and bags, fur coats, cut glass and jewelry. Silk stockings are simply unobtainable. Cosmetics and perfumes are scarce. Sporting events and horse races have been drastically curtailed. Speedway racing has been prohibited. No gasoline is available for pleasure driving. Let us not forget!—Edmonton Journal.

Prepare For Future

Victory Bonds Will Pay Off The Mortgage In Advance

In every Victory Loan campaign, though most of the big shows and colourful spectacles have taken place in large cities, smaller communities and the rural centres have always realized the vital importance of these national appeals. From advance reports reaching national headquarters of the War Finance Committee, smaller Canadian centres are planning to support the fifth drive more than ever before.

The war has placed heavy responsibilities on Canadian farmers, with food such a vitally important weapon of defensive and offensive operations. Farm labour is scarce; farm machinery is rationed. Particularly for the individual in the rural district who plans to pay off a mortgage on his farm or some other long term debt in the future, Dominion government securities are the safest way to keep savings intact until they are needed.

Other Canadians, due to the exigencies of war, have been deprived of home ownership. As a matter of fact in many communities they have been lucky to get even a roof over their heads. Today, through the purchase of Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates, these people can literally pay off the mortgage on a new house in advance. When the war ends, they will be able to give a builder or contractor the go-ahead signal and prepare to move right in.

Canadians who invest $4,000 in this loan, and who have subscribed a similar amount in each of Canada's war loans to date, will have $5,000, plus interest, available for home purchasing after the war. They will have succeeded in paying off their "mortgage" in advance and can move into their new homes, finance and worry free.

Other families have been setting up similar funds through their purchases of Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates to provide for their children's university education or for their own retirement. Victory bonds will help each of these people pay for the things they are fighting for.

SOUNDNEY WAY

The soundest and quite possibly the most economical way of dealing with old age pensions is to make them in fact payable to everybody on reaching the stipulated age. The application of a means test should be done away with, the need for a considerable staff would then disappear and the peace of mind and self-respect of the old people would be restored. ## LETTER FROM BRITAIN

Solving 5,000,000 Problems—Citizens' Advice Bureaux Extend Real Helping Hand To Workers—Lightening War's Burdens.

(By Sidney Hornblow)

WINSTON CHURCHILL'S fighting speeches have been an inspiration to the people of Britain, as well as to all those united with them in the common cause, through four long years of war. They have sometimes sounded a warning note, often urged caution, but they have always been encouraging. And none more so than this review of the war on his return from the United States.

News from the fighting fronts continues good; for four months no merchant vessel has been sunk by enemy action in the North Atlantic; preparations are being pushed ahead for the great assault on Germany from the West.

But there is no tendency to regard the war as won, even though planning for post-war development is now being done in almost every sphere. There is no illusion about the fact that, as Mr. Churchill reminded the nation, the bloodiest portion of the war both for Britain and the United States is fast approaching. So it is in a mood of sober confidence that the workers of Britain today respond to the increasing calls for output, and the changes in manufacture to provide the required kinds of weapons at the moment they are needed.

London is brighter these days—not in appearance but in spirit. Every instant is an opportunity with the presence of sailors, soldiers and airman wearing the uniforms of a score of nations, spending brief leaves and meeting each other in that spirit of cameraderie which is even more pronounced in this war than in the last. They are enjoying the same pleasures, the same concerts, the same plays and musical productions. When the war over they will take back to their own countries an appreciation of English music and drama as well as the technique of working together which has been evolved so successfully in war and will be continued in peace.

Something Out Difficulties

As war makes still deeper inroads into the normal family life of the nation, and people find themselves working in strange places in strange jobs, they become more than ever the helping hand which is extended to them by a remarkable organization called the Citizens' Advice Bureaux. This service was started in 1939 on the day after war began. Two hundred offices were opened in various parts of the country. That number has since grown to more than a thousand, employing altogether about 7,000 people—almost all of whom are volunteers. After four years of war the Citizens' Advice Bureaux have answered more than 5,000,000 enquiries. They deal with 7,000 questions and applications for help each day.

The blitzes, the call up for the fighting services, the transfer of young factory workers to strange new cities—all these things confronted men and women with unexpected queries and difficulties which the Citizens' Advice Bureaux set themselves to smooth out. Many Government Departments, particularly the Board of Trade which is concerned with clothes rationing, find the Advice Bureaux of great help in explaining to the public some of the more obscure points of the various rules and regulations.

Ensuring All Health

One thing which has lightened the burden of war on the shoulders of the nation as been the unflinching good health of the people, despite the strain of concentrated effort under adverse conditions. There have been no serious epidemics since war began, and for infectious disease 1942 has been one of the best years on record. Britain's immunity in this respect is due in some measure undoubtedly to the ingenious precautions which have been taken by the health authorities.

Bacteriologists with their staffs of constant assistants have organized into mobile units ready to go at a moment's notice to any part of the country where infection showed signs of developing. These "commandos" of the emergency public Health Laboratory Service were stationed at various centres in such a way as to enable them to provide the whole country with instantaneous help should it ever be needed.

Peat Bogs

Production In Ontario And Quebec May Ease Coal Shortage

Canada is digging more deeply into peat bogs estimated to cover 37,000 square miles to help meet the present shortage, but officials said that peat in itself is no solution of the problem.

Some 1,200 tons of peat—representing new production—has been turned out in Quebec this year, and Ontario output has been enlarged.

An important sideline in the development of peat resources has been the collection of lignum, moss found in peat bogs. Used extensively for treating wounds during the first Great War, the moss now has greater value. It is employed in certain chemical processes, in assisting the preservation of vegetables, and in agricultural activities.

Lignite is a woody type of immature coal that splits up into slabs on drying.

General Eisenhower Has Seven To Use In Tight Spots

General Dwight D. Eisenhower learned to fly in the Philippines but is not a first class pilot. He recently "landed" a small cabin plane five feet off the ground. The result was a bump when the plane squashed down, but nobody was hurt. Except on rare occasions, he pays no attention to enemy propaganda. He is not interested in what the Germans or Japanese have to say. An exception was during the Salerno landing when the Berlin radio said another "Dunkirk" was developing. The general commented that those assertions were nonsensical. He has several superstitions. He keeps seven lucky coins in his pocket in a special leather bag. In tight spots he takes one out and rubs it ceremoniously. He thinks Friday is his lucky day.

World of Wheat

by H. G. L. Strange Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

WRONG VARIETIES OF WHEAT

The "Crop Testing Plan" is now analyzing the results of this last summer's growing tests of thousands of wheat samples, each sample representing a farmer's growing field of wheat. Owing to the shortage of labor, tests this year were made only of samples from those areas which in the past have shown a high percentage of bad mixtures.

The first thing that strikes one looking over the tests is to note the large numbers of farmers who actually were growing a variety of wheat which was entirely different from the variety they thought they were producing. Many farmers, for instance, who thought they were growing Red Bobs—an early variety—were actually found to be producing Marquis—which is a much later variety. Because of this lateness many of such crops no doubt this year were caught by frost.

The tests show, too, that many farmers who thought they were growing a rust-resistant wheat, either Thatcher, Apex, Renown or Regent, actually were growing a variety susceptible to rust, such as Red Bobs, Marquis or Canus. Here, of course, the farmer would lose much money in a rust year. It does seem important, therefore, if farmers wish to make the full amount of money that their hard work deserves, that they should be absolutely certain that the seed they sow really is of the variety they wish to grow.

Friend of Alberta Farmers Recommends Victory Bonds to you...

DR. R. D. SINCLAIR has combined practical and academic knowledge of agriculture in a unique degree. Born on a farm near Innisfail, Alberta, he was one of the early students of the School of Agriculture at Olds, and was a member of the first class to graduate from the College of Agriculture at the University of Alberta in 1918.

After spending some time in editorial work with a well known farm magazine, Dr. Sinclair joined the staff of the Department of Animal Husbandry of the University in 1922. He obtained his Master of Science degree at Iowa State College and later went to Aberdeen, Scotland to secure his Ph.D.

Dr. Sinclair was appointed Dean of the University's Faculty of Agriculture in 1942. He is recognized as Canada's outstanding authority on swine production and is known personally to thousands of Alberta Farmers.

Dr. Sinclair urges farmers to buy Victory Bonds. He says:

"During the past four years of war the products of Alberta farms have made a substantial contribution to the food supply of the United Nations. But the need for weapons of war as well as food is still supremely urgent; one without the other will not finish the job."

"The Fifth Canadian Victory Loan provides further opportunity to make a financial investment in the war effort. The Bonds bought now will help to hold the farm lands of Alberta for Alberta farmers and, at the same time, provide the reserve capital which can be used for improvements when victory comes."

"As one born and raised on an Alberta farm, I appeal to the farmers of the Province to buy Bonds of the new Victory Loan to the limit of their financial resources."
